

Notification of Data Incident

August 25, 2025 – On March 10, 2025, Continental Aerospace Technologies (“Continental”) received an alert of potentially suspicious system activity. In response, we promptly initiated an investigation, engaging third-party specialists to assist in performing a comprehensive investigation and response effort, and have taken additional steps to harden the environment. Through further investigation, it was discovered that certain information was subject to unauthorized access or acquisition on or around March 9, 2025, in relation to this activity. Continental therefore undertook investigation into the scope of potential impact to information, and on July 23, 2025, Continental’s initial investigation determined that potentially impacted data may include individuals’ personal information, including individuals’ date of birth, Social Security Number, financial account information, medical information, health insurance information, driver’s license number and/or other government id number. Continental then worked to issue notification to individuals accordingly.

At this time, Continental is not aware of any evidence to suggest that any information has been fraudulent misused. However, in an abundance of caution, Continental is notifying potentially impacted individuals of this incident and providing access to credit monitoring services. Although, there is no evidence of actual or attempted fraudulent misuse of information as a result of this incident, individuals are nonetheless encouraged to monitor their account statements for suspicious activity and to detect errors.

Continental has established a toll-free number to answer questions about the incident and to address related concerns. The number to call is 1-888-802-9761 between the hours of 9 am – 9 pm Eastern Time, Monday through Friday excluding U.S. holidays. Continental takes the privacy and security of the information in its care seriously, and sincerely regrets any worry or inconvenience this may have caused.
